ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The Social Emotional Learning Conference is an exciting annual event hosted by Alignment Nashville and Metro Nashville Public Schools designed to empower teachers, school staff, and community youth advocates with Social Emotional Learning competencies and practices. Since the inaugural conference in July 2011, diverse community partners, mental health providers, and experts on the forefront of the SEL movement have come together to provide a variety of workshops that engage educators and youth-serving professionals in powerful discussions and experiential learning, and equips them with concrete strategies and tools to address the needs of the whole student through SEL. Together, we are building a community of practice that can transform learning environments with long-term systemic change around positive school climate, stronger support systems for students, improved student health, academic engagement, and overall student success.

Driven by urgent need and high demand, the SEL Conference has grown from a district-level professional development opportunity for 150 local educators to a highly anticipated regional conference drawing over 900 participants. The program has undergone a massive transformation to accommodate this expansion — scaling up to feature more than 120 workshops and numerous renowned keynote speakers such as Dr. Jeff Duncan Andrade, Dr. Pedro Noguera, and Dr. Tim Shriver. As the conference takes the national stage in 2018, new opportunities will include expanded workshop series, improved post-conference engagement, and dedicated program tracks for educators, administrators, community providers.
